Sweetwater

sprout
To cause to sprout; as, the rain will sprout the seed. To shoot the seed of a plant; to germinate; to push out new shoots; hence, to grow like shoots of plants. To deprive of sprouts; to sprout potatoes. The shoot of a plant; a shoot from the stump, or from the root or tuber, of a plant or more rarely, a shoot from the stem of a plant, or the end of a branch.

sunshine
Of the sun, or the place where it shines; the direct rays of the sun; the place where they fall, or the warmth and cheerfulness that of the rays of the sun; warmth; illumination; sunshiny; bright.

renew
To bring again; to restore to freshness, perfection, or vigor; to give life to; to rejuvenate; to reestablish; to recreate; to refresh.

plant
To cause to sprout; as, the rain will sprout the seed. To shoot the seed of a plant; to germinate; to push out new shoots; hence, to grow like shoots of plants. To deprive of sprouts; to sprout potatoes. The shoot of a plant; a shoot from the stump, or from the root or tuber, of a plant or more rarely, a shoot from the stem of a plant, or the end of a branch. A bush, or young tree; a sapling; hence, a stick or staff. The whole machinery and apparatus employed in carrying on a trade or mechanical business; also, sometimes including the estate, and whatever represents investment of capital in means of carrying on a business.
